Cromax introduces new ChromaWeb app designed to drive bodyshop productivity

The new ChromaWeb app from Cromax for smartphones and tablets is now available in the AppStore and in Google Play. The ChromaWeb app is free of charge and offers the same functionality as ChromaWeb, the comprehensive cloud-based colour retrieval software from Cromax, but it has some additional features including a barcode reader, which provides a value-added solution for digital colour matching.

The ChromaWeb app helps refinishers work faster and with more precision, allowing them to access and to share colour data with the IP scale for mixing the formula, the bodyshop or with an entire bodyshop network on the go. In combination with the spectrophotometer ChromaVision Pro Mini, the ChromaWeb app forms the most advanced digital colour management system ChromaConnect, which is available from Cromax.

The ChromaWeb app is an integral part of ChromaConnect and it provides direct access to the global colour and product database. "The app integrates seamlessly into the digital infrastructure of a bodyshop and will prove especially helpful for bodyshop networks as it enables colour formulas to be shared quickly and easily across different locations," says Kevin Torfs, Cromax Brand Manager for Europe, the Middle East and Africa.

With the app, all personal formulas are automatically backed-up in the cloud, so they can be retrieved where and when they are needed. The app even helps users assess how much paint is needed for a specific repair.

The ChromaWeb app provides fast and easy access to an always up-to-date colour formula database, helping bodyshops to drive productivity and precision. It speeds up colour formula retrieval and makes product management easier.

Torfs concludes, "Its easy-to-use, intuitive interface makes the ChromaWeb app a must-have tool for all bodyshops."
